Welcome to Udacity!

Establishing Developer Mindset

Self Letter:

Hello my legendary twin soul Rakan,
Hope this finds you well,

Well, I'm really exciting to share this with you. I just decided to stop wasting my time following ambiguous dreams or making more emotional and irrational decisions to make me feel good or satisfy myself. I was so confused because I'm really an ambitious person and I want to make a difference in my life, but I'm not ready yet since I'm lacking the focused knowledge. As you know "knowing everything about one thing is much better than knowing one thing about everything".

I think I reached this situation because I don't really know my passion yet or what is the best way to find it. However, I decided to start my journey to find my passion from now.

If you're wondering how I'm gonna do it, well I will start with what I really want to master: Web Development, Mobile Application Development, and Designing. First I will rely on my humble experience as a computer engineer. Secondly, I will learn all the basics of developing with HTML, CSS, JS. Moreover, step by step my knowledge will growth as well as my own mindset as a developer. This mindset is essential to me to overcome all obstacles that I will face during my journey.

Finally, I will unleash myself to dream and make all what I want till I become the best version of me, YOU.

Sincere Regards,
Rakan

My Goals:
   * To build a solid knowledge in web development that's enables my to convert my dreams to reality.
   * To master developing web applications for IOS, Android.
   * To master developing applications using cross-platform frameworks.